Extended Integrative Learning for Collaborative Practice (TMM3321)

Module Level:	6
Module Credit Value:	20
Pre-requisites:	None
Co-requisites:	None
Excluded Combination of Modules:	None
Aims:	To enable students to further develop skills in study and critical reflection that is cross-disciplinary and holistic through the integrated study of two specific topics.
	To facilitate individual and corporate reflective practice by the students as they develop a sophisticated understanding of the relationship between prior experience (both their own and those of others) and their own current learning and study.
	To encourage critical and informed understanding of the challenges presented by the topic under consideration for Christian discipleship and mission and encourage the formulation of students' own coherent personal responses.
	To encourage and facilitate collaborative learning practices through group learning and group project work, offering constructive and appropriate peer feedback.
	To encourage students to make informed and complex connections with their past, present and future life and ministry in a theologically rigorous way.

Content:

Extended integrated study modules allow two specific topics to be studied from the perspective of various theological and other disciplines in a group learning context. The primary focus is to help students develop cross-disciplinary skills in study and reflection while working as a team towards a group assessment. The choice of the specific topics lies with the training institution. They might be major issues in Christian life, discipleship, mission or ministry or a particular theological themes. The two topics will be studied sequentially with assessment and reflection between them allowing students to learn from experience in the first before embarking on the second.

Each topic will then be studied from at least three of the following theological perspectives: biblical studies, mission studies, pastoral theology, church history, ethics, systematics, liturgical studies, or ecclesiology. There will also be insights from at least one 'non-theological' discipline, such as psychology, philosophy, sociology, cultural studies, media studies. Students will be expected to draw on their learning in other modules to give additional perspectives. Depending on the topic, some of the input will be from "expert practitioners" as well as various academic subject specialists. Throughout the module there will be group activities to support and enhance the learning. The group will be expected to demonstrate the use of academic tools and methodologies appropriate to the disciplines and to reflect corporately and individually on the learning process. The following is an indicative list of topics that could be considered

- Sexual ethics
- Death and dying
- The Anglican Communion
- Christianity and world faiths
- Leadership and mission
- Church and community
- Ecumenism
- Liturgy and mission

Learning Outcomes:	By the end of this module students will be able to:
